SUSTAINABILITY PROJECT: SUPPORTING MINISTRY LEADERS THROUGH PIG FARMING

Evangelical Christian College (ECC) remains committed not only to the theological education and spiritual formation of its students but also to their long-term well-being and sustainability in ministry. Recognizing the financial challenges often faced by pastors, church planters, and ministry leaders, the college has initiated a Sustainability Project aimed at helping graduates develop practical income-generating activities that can support their families while they continue serving the Lord.

As part of this initiative, ECC recently provided four piglets each to three graduates and ministry leaders: Pastor Simon, Amos, and Amit. The purpose of this project is to establish a sustainable source of income through pig farming and breeding. By raising the piglets and expanding their stock through breeding, the beneficiaries are expected to generate additional income that can contribute to household expenses, ministry needs, and future agricultural development.

BENEFICIARIES OF THE SUSTAINABILITY PROJECT

Pastor Simon has expressed gratitude for the support and has already begun caring for the piglets with the goal of building a small-scale pig farming enterprise. The project provides him with an opportunity to strengthen his family's financial stability while continuing his pastoral responsibilities within his community.

Similarly, Amos has enthusiastically embraced the project and is working diligently to ensure the healthy growth of the piglets. He views this initiative as a valuable means of supplementing his income and creating a more secure future for his family and ministry.

Amit has also benefited from the project and has demonstrated a strong commitment to making the venture successful. By carefully managing the livestock and planning for future breeding, he hopes to develop a sustainable livelihood that will enable him to continue serving in ministry without excessive financial burden.

EQUIPPING SERVANTS OF CHRIST AND TRANSFORMING COMMUNITIES

We are committed to encouraging and equipping our Evangelical Christian College graduates as they go forth to serve God through ministry and by using their God-given gifts to communicate the Good News of Jesus Christ. Our desire is to see these graduates become faithful servants who not only preach the Word of God but also demonstrate Christ's love through practical service in their communities. We believe that church planters and ministry workers are called to be a blessing to the people they serve. Therefore, alongside sharing the Gospel, they actively seek to bring positive change to their communities through education, compassion, and social outreach. Many of our graduates are involved in helping children gain access to education and supporting families through various community development initiatives.

LIVING WATER

One of the greatest needs in many of the villages where our brothers and sisters are serving is access to clean and safe drinking water.

Families often travel long distances or rely on unsafe water sources, which can lead to health challenges and hardship. To address this need, we are prayerfully seeking support for hand pump water projects that can provide reliable access to clean drinking water for these communities. As Jesus declared Himself to be the "Living Water," we see these water projects not only as a means of meeting physical needs but also as an opportunity to share the love, compassion, and hope found in Christ. Through these acts of service, doors are opened for meaningful relationships and Gospel witness within the community.

We humbly ask for your prayers and partnership as we continue this important work. Your support helps equip Christian leaders, strengthen local communities, provide educational opportunities for children, and bring life-changing access to clean water for those in need.

Together, we can make a lasting impact for the Kingdom of God - sharing both the message of salvation and the practical love of Christ with those who need it most.

"Whoever drinks the water I give them will never thirst."
- John 4:14

We thank God for the progress made thus far and invite friends, supporters, and ministry partners to continue praying for and supporting these sustainability efforts. Together, we can help build stronger leaders, healthier families, and more resilient ministries for the glory of God.
